Parochial Issue Is Back Again

Private Dental School May Get $150,000

LANSING (AP) — The University of Detroit, a private college operated by the Roman Catholic Church, has been allocated $150,000 by the Michigan Legislature to shore up its founding dental school.

Despite denials from its supporters, the measure stands as the latest development in an ongoing legislative battle over parochial-state aid to private and church operated schools.

After two days of protracted debate, the House voted 62-43 Wednesday to join with the Senate in endorsing the bill to pay "each accredited nonpublic school of dentistry in the state" $2,400 for each graduated doctor of dental surgery or dental medicine.

SOLE BENEFICIARY

The U of D, as the lone private dental school in Michigan, would be the sole beneficiary of the bill. The University of Michigan has the only public state dental school.

Earlier senate review of the bill proved uneventful.

The House, however, embroiled for several months with controversial parochial bills proposing as much as $40 million for private and church-run elementary and secondary schools found the dental aid bill no simple question.

As an amendment of the $848 million school aid bill, parochial aid met defeat in the lower chamber.

Largely because of that experience, Wednesday's House debate focused on the constitutionality of state funds for a private college, whether or not church-affiliated, overshadowing consideration of the U of D's financial plight, its jeopardized accreditation and the state's shortage of practicing dentists.

GOP Leader Snaps Whip, Bill Passes

House Trailer Length Extended

LANSING (AP) — In a sudden reversal of voting, the House Wednesday passed a bill extending the legal length of house trailers to 65 feet and of vehicles pulling them to 20 feet, a total of 85 feet, after it appeared Tuesday that the bill was headed for defeat.

The switch, in which ten Democrats and eight Republicans changed overnight from foes to backers of the bill, was largely attributed to the power of Sen. Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis.

Lockwood, Republican majority leader, represents a district which includes Alma, which calls itself the nation's trailer capital.

Extension of the limit was opposed by the State Highway Department, State Police and the Commerce Department, all of whom considered it would create a greater safety hazard.

The bill passed 69 to 32 Wednesday and headed for Gov. Milliken's desk after Rep. Richard Allen, R-Ithaca, requested that the House reconsider the bill saying: "A vote for the bill is a vote for an important industry and for homes a little too long for an archaic state law."

The bill, which is a boon for the state trailer industry, would legalize power units up to 20-feet long coupled to mobile homes 65-feet long or combinations of pre-built housing modules of that same length, and 12½ feet wide.

Existing law allows 75-foot combinations in which the mobile home unit can be no longer than 60 feet.

Fire May Have Killed 10 Persons

POSEN (AP)—Two members of a rural Posen farm family remained alive today after a midnight fire burned down their house, possibly killing as many as 10 persons.

Surviving are Edward Graliewicz, son of the house's 83-year-old owner, Anthony Graliewicz, and Carol Bonin, his granddaughter, who was reported away on a trip.

Presque Isle County sheriff's deputies retracted an earlier report which had said the 83-year-old grandfather had escaped. They said Edward had awakened his father, but the older man did not manage to escape.

RED HOT SIFT

Nothing remains of the four-bedroom home except red-hot silt after the blaze, which deputies said started in a laundry room.

Sheriff's deputies said the stone foundation and the silt was too hot to examine closely for remains of the other occupants of the home.

A state fire marshal was reported en route from Traverse City to the scene to supervise the search operations which will take place as soon as the ruins cool sufficiently.

Aren't Swedes Rushing Things, Byker Wonders

Sex Text For Tots Bugs Senator

LANSING (AP) — "Mother, I would so very much like to try to make a baby with Carolyn," said Peter (5 years old) to mother.

"Yes, but you can't do that yet you funny little boy," said Peter's mother, laughing. "Carolyn has no egg cells yet, and you have no sperm cells...you will have to wait until you grow up."

The official record of the Michigan Senate today contains that passage, read in by Sen. Gary Byker, R-Hudsonville, who joined several colleagues in revealing plans to enter a growing statewide controversy over sex education courses in Michigan elementary and secondary schools.

Byker said the quoted passage was included in a translation of a Swedish book for 5- to 8-year-old children. The book, he said, currently is included in a sex education bibliography published by the State Education Department for local school use.

Byker and Sen. Milton Zaagman, R-Grand Rapids, Wednesday introduced a resolution calling for a special committee study of sex education materials to be used in the state's public schools.

The proposal cites "a great amount of concern and aggravation among many parents about the sex education materials."

RUMORS FLYING

"There are a lot of rumors about what's in that bibliography," Zaagman said. "Let's find out once and for all if they do go beyond the bounds of good taste."

James O'Neil, a member of the State Education Board, charged that some bibliography materials would be considered "pornography" by some adults.

His contention, broadcast widely throughout the Legislature, was partly responsible for adoption of a resolution urging local schools to halt sex education courses—authorized by a 1968 act—until the state department provided some guidelines.

Proposed guidelines were presented to the state board earlier this week, as some 500 interested persons crowded the board meeting room, often interrupting proceedings and waving signs that said "Protect Our Children. No Sex Ed."

The Senate mandated even more guidelines Wednesday as it gave 3-0 approval to a House passed bill authorizing the Education Department to set up a "critical health problems" program.

Such a program—with guidelines to be established under

Gas Leak Could Delay Start Of Countdown

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A leak developed in the pressurization system of the Apollo 11 rocket today and a crew rushed in to find it. The leak could cause a delay in tonight's scheduled start of the final countdown for the moon landing mission.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the leak was in the helium gas system used to pressurize fuel tanks in the first stage of the 36-story Saturn 5 rocket.

The helium is stored in bottles in the liquid oxygen propellant tank.

The exact location of the leak was not known and access doors were opened to permit a crew of technicians to enter the tank, which holds 334,000 gallons of liquid oxygen.

"We don't know where the leak is or how serious it is," a NASA spokesman said.

If not found and corrected, the leak possibly could hold up the start of the final countdown, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. tonight, aiming for a liftoff at 9:32 a.m. next Wednesday.

As the technicians troubleshooted the problem, the Apollo 11 astronauts, Neil A. Armstrong,

Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins climbed into the command ship trainer to practice the engine maneuver that will shoot them out of earth orbit and set them on a quarter-million-mile course to the moon. (See earlier story on page 14, Section 1.)

Senate Kicking
The Tax Bucket

Despite the Administration's plea for action first on the surtax extension and debate second on tax reform, and quite likely because of it, the Senate is saying it will talk loud and long before it does anything.

Russell B. Long (D., La.) chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, erected two road blocks against the surtax extension which narrowly squeaked past the House.

The House voted to extend the 10 per cent surtax from this June 30th to December 31st and to run it out at 5 per cent through the first half of 1970.

Senator Long's surprise announcement of Tuesday predicts his group will cut the House's rate by as yet an undisclosed amount and embroider it liberally with reform measures.

"Any Senator with a reform idea will have the opportunity to air it," he told the reporters.

The single concession to Nixon's urgency on the surtax, he added, would be a monthly extension of its collection.

If the reader wants to know what's the difference between collecting the surtax at 10 per cent and saying the rate may be dropped some time later in the year, we can reply in one of two ways.

Either Long is fanning the air or is thinking of a refund gimmick encrusted upon the refunding method already in the Internal Revenue Code.

Inasmuch as Long is a political centrist trusted by conservatives and heavily discounted by liberals, we believe his Tuesday announcement is less his own opinion and more that of the politician who knows when to measure the wind's velocity and when to shut the door to it.

The Senate, at least its Democratic majority, resembles the small boy kept indoors by a pelting rain outside.

The kid could do something in the house, of a constructive nature even, but we leave it to the mothers to answer that one.

The great urge in Congress is to do something about Viet Nam and the defense program. The enemy won't cooperate in that respect and the Administration, the one closest to those conundrums, is uncertain of what may be possible.

Everyone is aware of the war at home, namely, inflation. This battle is going poorly because of an excess of generalship.

The public, if the latest Gallup poll is to be taken at face value, would accept wage and price controls.

The Federal Reserve thinks tight money can do the trick if the government does not lift its domestic spending.

The White House views the surtax extension, not as a permanent solution but as an extra ice cube or two to cool a too hot drink.

The Senate and to a lesser degree, the House, have no single, fixed solution, but are making a great show of displaying one.

Tax reform is long overdue. The Congressional mailbag is filled daily with bitter complaints from middle class Americans who are finally catching on to some of the shelters carved over the years into the IRC for special interests.

The messages vary in their wording but they convey one basic thought. Start afresh by treating everyone alike so that everybody carries his fair share of the load.

Translating this philosophy into understandable English has been the hang up ever since the tax reform slogan first gained circulation 15 years ago.

Congress did enact a so called tax reform bill at that time, but this 1954 Internal Revenue Code is just what the word, code, signifies. It's an improved indexing of the accounting gobbledook enacted by separate stages since the federal income tax took effect in 1913.

The pitfalls for the unwary and the special interest privileges are still there, and, if anything, in greater impact than before.

The Washington political breeze has blown against some of the more obvious ice caps such as the minerals depletion allowance, exemptions for cooperative business ventures of all types, exemptions on municipal bond interest, and high deductions for charitable donations.

Changing any of those more apparent items, not to mention the submerged ones which only the skilled tax accountant knows of, is not a matter to be approached in the haste which Long's announcement forecasts.

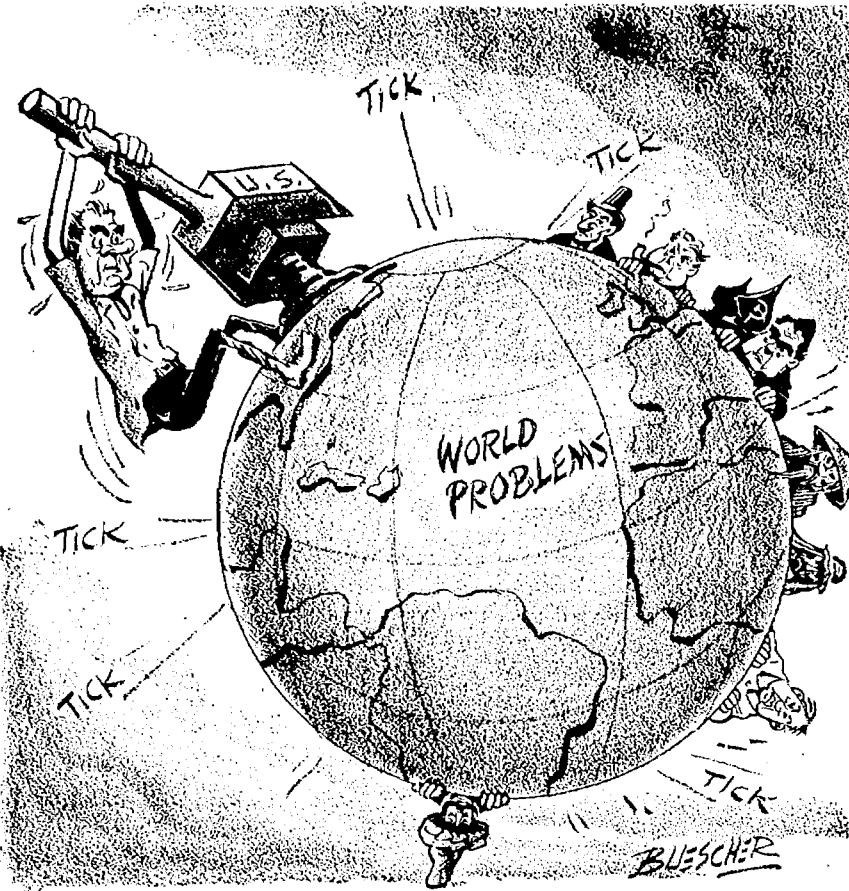

The log rolling alone within Congress from one pet peeve to another will be time exhausting.

Nixon's timetable would set 1970 aside for a thorough overhauling of the IRC.

This is an election year for all of the House and a third of the Senate.

This thought is uppermost in Congressional circles. The time to ballyhoo a circus is before the main tent opens.

THINK AHEAD

Peering into the future is by no means a talent or stroke of genius visited upon any particular mortal. We all have one or more talents, able to foretell or foresee possibilities if enough time is contributed to an examination of these talents. "Reading the handwriting on the wall" is an expression used by great men and women who have made great contributions toward every science, profession and business.

When Midway Airport was opened to air traffic way back when traveling by air was more of an adventure than a necessity, it was believed that nothing greater was, or could ever be required for many long years, so the powers that were, at the time sat back and twiddled their thumbs. All was well indeed, i.e., they thought it was, but how wrong they were.

Something happened. Air travel took the world by storm. O'Hare Field was born as were other great airports throughout America and today they are about as practical as a chicken roost.

Somehow, for some undisclosed reason the American people are prone to let things ride and cross bridges when they reach them. All the problems we have, beside the airport dilemma, have been with us for a century. Poverty is nothing new, nor is crime, or war, or water and air pollution.

Our trouble has been the failure to foresee possibilities when we come up with a new idea, invention, project or scheme. We build for today and today only.

When the automobile became so much in demand then the highway became a problem, and still is. We'll soon need ten-lane, divided highways the length and the breadth of the United States. Instead of needing 600 airports twice the size of O'Hare we'll require 5,000, plus small airports for small cities towns and villages, for believe it or not, the airlines will be compelled to compete with mass transportation by the railroads being able to make stops where the people want to go, not where they have no choice.

The big problem is not so much passenger service nationwide but the movement of freight, for no airline or group of airlines could ever handle or distribute one thousandth of the tonnage that our railroads handle and deliver practically to our doorstep, so laugh that one off.

Airports, large and small, highways 500 feet wide? I think the farmers will have no problem on their hands for they will not make sacrifices of their choice lands.

The other day I witnessed five diesels hauling 181 heavily loaded, giant freight cars at about 50 mph. How many planes would be required to carry that load? How much would they cost? Could they stop at every station on the road? How about some answers?

We had better start building for tomorrow's needs. Our schools are testimony of that need.

DR. COLEMAN

.. And Speaking
Of Your Health

I slipped and fell while I was on a coffee break from my job. It is true that I broke my ankle outside of the factory but shouldn't this be a compensation case?

Mr. N.O.E., Illinois
Dear Mr. E.: The compensation laws are a great social advance which offer important protection to workers. The expense of any illness is so great and the cost of hospital care so exorbitant that this added protection is vital to families everywhere.

When I say that the cost of medical and hospital care is exorbitant, I do not mean to imply that hospitals are making a profit on our illnesses. The fact that your own wages have increased, as they must have, means that the wages of hospital personnel have similarly gone up. We have long since passed the day when nurses and other hospital personnel were paid meager salaries and were asked "to be dedicated workers." Dedication comes only after people are paid a dignified wage.

As to your particular problem, a compensation case is one that includes an illness or an injury directly related to the character of the job or the place of employment. Whether or not your injury is compensable depends entirely on the laws of your state and the legal contact between you, your employer, and the government agency.

Compensation laws vary but almost always hospital and medical expenses, appliances and total convalescent care are paid for. Your particular problem obviously falls into a category which can only be completely investigated from the legal point of view.

My experience has been that the compensation laws and the cooperation of the employers tend to favor workers.

My son injured his knee while playing football. He has a torn cartilage and surgery has been recommended. Will this leave him with a permanent stiff knee?

Mrs. B. R., Arizona
Dear Mrs. R.: A torn cartilage is probably one of the most common of injuries to athletes and people doing heavy work. When the knee is suddenly twisted the cartilage can become ripped away its attachment to the tibia, which is the larger of the two bones of the lower leg. This results in some limitation of motion of the knee, with tenderness, swelling and pain over it.

Sometimes a torn cartilage can heal by itself with long periods of rest and by the use of a splint or cast. This is frequently tried but the results usually are disappointing, especially if the tear was a severe one.

Surgery, when selected, is neither difficult nor dangerous. The results are very satisfactory and cure can follow in almost all instances. Since there are two cartilages in the knee joint, one can be removed without interfering too much with movement of the knee.

The victim is not left with permanent damage or limited activity. The knee should be respected after surgery and must not deliberately be exposed to repeated injuries.

Recovery from a torn cartilage operation, with adequate rest, almost always permits resumption of physical exercise and athletics.

DELUXE BENTON APARTMENTS ARE STARTED

Pilots Are Invited To Meeting

Special Safety Program Will Be Explained

All pilots — commercial, private, instructors as well as business pilots — have been invited to attend a special meeting to be held in the Pilots Lounge in the new Administration Building at Ross Field at 7:30 p.m. Monday, July 14.

Explaining the purpose of this meeting, John Hodges of South Bend, accident prevention specialist for the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA), announced that the Twin Cities had been selected as a test area for one phase of a nationwide study being conducted to develop methods and programs to reduce aircraft accidents.

Hodges said that, as one part of this program, questionnaires had been sent to pilots asking for their opinions on ways to increase safety in flying. He said he had received over 800 replies, with many indicating an interest in developing a program on which pilots would check each other's proficiency on a periodic basis.

VOLUNTARY COOPERATION
Because the success of such a program would depend upon the voluntary cooperation of the pilots themselves, Hodges said, details of the program would have to be worked out by the pilots rather than the FAA.

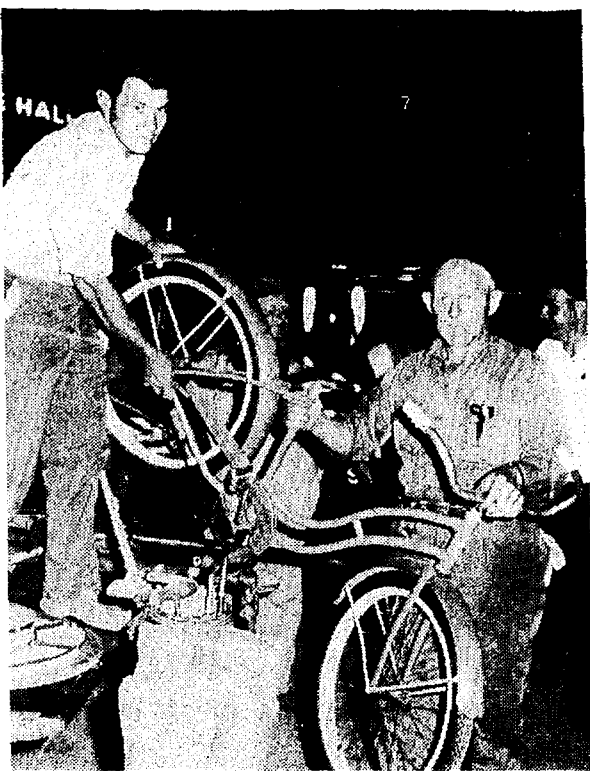

The meeting Monday night is being jointly sponsored by Gene Cramer, President of Cramer Aviation, and Ed Weisbrich, airport manager, and will start with a film showing some of the great moments in aviation history. Art Sharp, tower chief at South Bend airport, will discuss the problems facing a controller and the ways private pilots can best cooperate with the controllers, especially when passing through high density areas such as Chicago.

Al Doerr, a business pilot from Coldwater, will outline the program the pilots in his community have instituted to increase safety in flying. The meeting will then be turned over to the pilots present so they can discuss and develop a self evaluation program to be operated here in the Twin Cities area.

NO FAA RECORD
Hodges emphasized that, although the FAA will assist in any manner it can, one requirement for this program is that it must be developed, operated and administered by pilots in the area and that no record of the proficiency test would be furnished to the FAA.

If this program is successful in the Twin Cities, it will be used as a pattern for developing a national program. To encourage as many pilots as possible to attend, Cramer, of Cramer Aviation Center, has offered to furnish instructors for free half-hour proficiency check rides to the first 10 pilots who register at the meeting Monday night, the pilots to furnish their own aircraft. Cramer said the check rides could be taken any time at the pilot's convenience.

Release Of Anti-Pollution Funds Is Getting Nearer

LANSING (AP) — A resolution clearing the way for 54 Michigan communities (including Benton Harbor, Three Oaks and Decatur) to receive chunks of the $335 million in water pollution bond money approved by voters last fall today awaits House consideration.

The Senate passed the measure 28-1 Wednesday, authorizing release of some $70.1 million of the $285 million in bond money earmarked for aid to local units constructing sewage treatment plants.

A companion measure, setting up methods for allocating the remaining $50 million for local units for construction of connecting sewers, was moved into position for final vote in the upper chamber. The House already has passed that bill.

PRIORITY LIST
The resolution includes a priority project list compiled by the State Water Resources Commission. Projects totaling an estimated $133.2 million — to be financed with federal and local funds and some 50 per cent state money — are outlined. They are, in order of listed priority, with estimated total project cost in dollars, as follows:

First Such Project In Years

Complex Costing $2.2 Million For 178 Units

Ground was broken yesterday for Napier Manor, a deluxe apartment complex to be built on East Napier avenue in Benton township between Milton and Union streets.

Slated to cost $2,200,000, it is the first major deluxe apartment complex to go into the Benton Harbor-Benton township area in many years.

When complete in September 1970, Napier Manor will contain 178 apartments divided among 17 separate buildings. In the initial phase begun yesterday, half of that total are to be complete by December 1 of this year.

The developers and general contractor of Napier Manor are Robert and Dorothy Cooke of Portage, Ind. Sherill Hudson of Hudson, Real Estate, Benton Harbor, will act as property manager.

RECREATION FACILITIES
Available to residents of the apartments will be such recreational facilities as a swimming pool, tennis courts, clubhouse, and a large fireplace.

As described by Hudson, the typical two-bedroom apartment will have a kitchen, formal dining room, living room, one-and-a-half baths and a balcony. Other features include complete wall-to-wall carpeting, drapery, built-in appliances, entrances outfitted with special electronic security devices and laundry facilities on each floor.

Hudson said that a $185 monthly rent is anticipated for the two-bedroom units. Also included in the complex will be a number of efficiency and one-bedroom apartments.

Local Bugle Corps Win Top Honors

Two Twin Cities drum and bugle units chalked up additional honors during appearances since July 3.

The Blossomland Cadets won two awards in competition in Chicago while the Twin City Junior Drum and Bugle corps won top honors in the youth, non-float division in South Haven's Centennial and Blueberry Festival last weekend.

The Cadets won first place honors in a parade Sunday at Legion Park Ridge Days parade, Chicago Ridge, on the Mid-American Circuit. They were awarded second place honors in field competition July 4 at the Hoffman Estates, Chicago.

The Cadets are sponsored by Amvet Post 88, St. Joseph; American Legion Post 163, St. Joseph, and the VFW Post 1137, Benton Harbor.

The Twin City Corps followed their appearance in the South Haven festivities with a 15-minute show. On July 4, they performed at the Shoreham Convalescent home and also at Firststap field, Benton Harbor, for a fireworks program.

SJ Township Okays Joint Sewer Setup With Lincoln

St. Joseph township trustees voted 4-2 yesterday afternoon to join the sanitary sewer system being developed for a large area south of St. Joseph.

The word best describing the vote and the hour and a half questioning of an engineer is cautious. Trustees Robert DeVries and Carl Reschke, the first two to vote, cast negative ballots. Then in order trustees Edwin Brink, Clerk Andy Sch-

Gast Will Hold Sales Convention

A three-day workshop for executives from firms distributing G.A.S. Manufacturing corporation products will be held Monday through Wednesday at the Holiday Inn, M-139, Benton township, and the Gast plant nearby.

Sales Manager Herman A. Robandt, in charge of the program, said 26 executives from across the nation are expected to attend. William E. Gast, president of the Gast firm, will welcome the participants.

The primary purpose of the workshop, said Robandt, is to help the executives build better organizations. An initial such program was conducted two years ago.

Robandt and Warren Gast, general manager of the firm, said group discussions and workshops would be held on areas such as finance and new products.

man, Turestee Dr. John Manning and Treasurer Einar A. (Larry) Larson voted approval.

NO CONTRACT
Both DeVries and Reschke said they opposed the resolution because of absence of a contract with the Twin City Sewerage Board spelling out how much it would cost to process the sewage.

Dr. Manning, who made the motion to put St. Joseph on record as supporting the plan to build an interceptor sewer from a point beyond Stevensville to the Twin City Sewage Disposal plant, Industrial avenue, St. Joseph, said he was impressed by the planning and engineering and that he had faith in the authority (the Lake Michigan Shoreline Water and Sewage treatment authority made up of St. Joseph and Lincoln townships and Stevensville and Shoreham.)

James H. Granger, professional engineer with Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May, the Ann Arbor engineering firm that drew up the Northern Berrien plan for water and sewage service, said the action must be taken now to protect the priority of the $900,000 federal grant. He said construction of the $1.8 million project must be authorized by Dec. 31.

St. Joseph township trustees were apprehensive on two counts. The cost of building an interceptor sewer, estimated to cost St. Joseph and Lincoln townships $632,500, comes hard on the heels of the $4 million water system just being started. Then the new sewer line will not serve the Fairplain area east of the St. Joseph river which was said to have the greater sewer problem. St. Joseph township would pay 42 per cent of the $632,500.

ESCAPE CLAUSE
Two amendments were written into the resolution. One would give the township an escape clause in case federal funds are not forthcoming and the other seeks a formal contract with the Twin Cities. Township Attorney John Crow said the Twin Cities Sewer board has offered to accept township sewage at the same rate it accepts Benton township sewage. A 16-inch interceptor sewer owned by the City of St. Joseph would be utilized until flow reaches 750,000 gallons per day.

JOHN YOUNG

John Young Principal At Covert

Athlete Returns To Alma Mater

COVERT — The salutatorian of Covert high school's 1968 graduating class will return to the school as principal on Aug. 1.

John Young, who has taught in Jackson public schools for eight years, was appointed principal of Covert high school for the 1969-70 school year.

Dr. Lewis Wood, Covert superintendent, said the Covert school board approved hiring of Young and he signed a one-year contract for $14,000. He was one of two candidates interviewed by the board.

Young will succeed Roderick Halstad who resigned earlier this month after two years as principal. Halstad said he plans to continue working on a specialist in education degree at Western Michigan university.

Hiring of a Negro high school principal was one of 14 demands presented to the board by the Van Buren branch of the NAACP last winter after the school was closed for several days over student disciplinary problems.

Young, his wife Sandra and their three children will move to the Covert area from Jackson. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young, live in the Covert school district at route 1, South Haven.

At Covert high school, Young starred in basketball and track. After graduating at the head of the Class of 1956 he went to Michigan State university where he played on the varsity basketball team. He was graduated from MSU in 1961 with a bachelor of arts degree and is presently completing work on his master's degree there.

He started teaching in the Jackson public school system in 1961 and most recently has taught in the high school special education division.

Young served as a teacher-home-school coordinator and community development director in Project Head Start at Jackson. Other activities included membership on the Jackson Human Relations commission and the public school's multi-ethnic committee, a director of the Better Homes association an advisor to youth groups.

He was named Jackson county Teacher of the Year in 1967.

He addressed the Covert Alumni association's annual banquet in May.

LOTS OF DRIVING

LANSING (AP) — Motorists drove 48 billion miles on Michigan roads during 1968, the State Highway Department reports. Motorists in California racked up the highest state mileage for the year by driving 106 billion miles.

Many people made contributions in "Buddy Box" canisters placed in stores and business places. This phase of the campaign was started by neighbors of the Batterson family.

The canisters were placed in stores and business places in the downtown area a week ago and contributions had reached $1,000 by Tuesday.

Other benefits are being planned to raise funds to help Buddy, a high school junior, who was stricken with the disease of the bloodstream in February. After spending February and March in University Hospital, Ann Arbor, Buddy was permitted to come home to resume his studies, but the disease flared up again and he has been hospitalized since June 2. Funds collected through the Buddy Box canisters and benefits will be used to help defray medical and hospital expenses which now exceed $7,500.

SALE FRIDAY

A Buddy baked foods sale, sponsored by neighbors and friends, will be held Friday in the building at 221½ East Front street, formerly occupied by Floral Enterprises, starting at 9:30 a.m. Persons wishing to donate to the sale may take their food to the building Friday morning. Mrs. Orville Harrington and Mrs. Richard Chubb are in charge of the sale.

Friday night there will be a dance for adults in the new air-conditioned Moose Hall from 9 to midnight. The Moose lodge is donating the use of the hall and the music is being donated by Doug Leiter and his band. Tickets are $3.50 per couple. It is suggested that babysitters for persons attending the dance donate their earnings to the fund.

CAR WASH SATURDAY

A Buddy car wash will be sponsored by Budd's classmates Saturday at the city parking lot on Days Avenue, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

On Saturday night, July 19, Operation Recreation will sponsor a Buddy Hop, a street dance for teenagers, from 9 to 12 in the downtown area.

Individuals or organizations may make contributions to the "Buddy Account" at Inter-City Bank, or by contacting Mrs. Bernard Ellis or Mrs. Dale Tilly.

Suspect Held In Migrant Killing

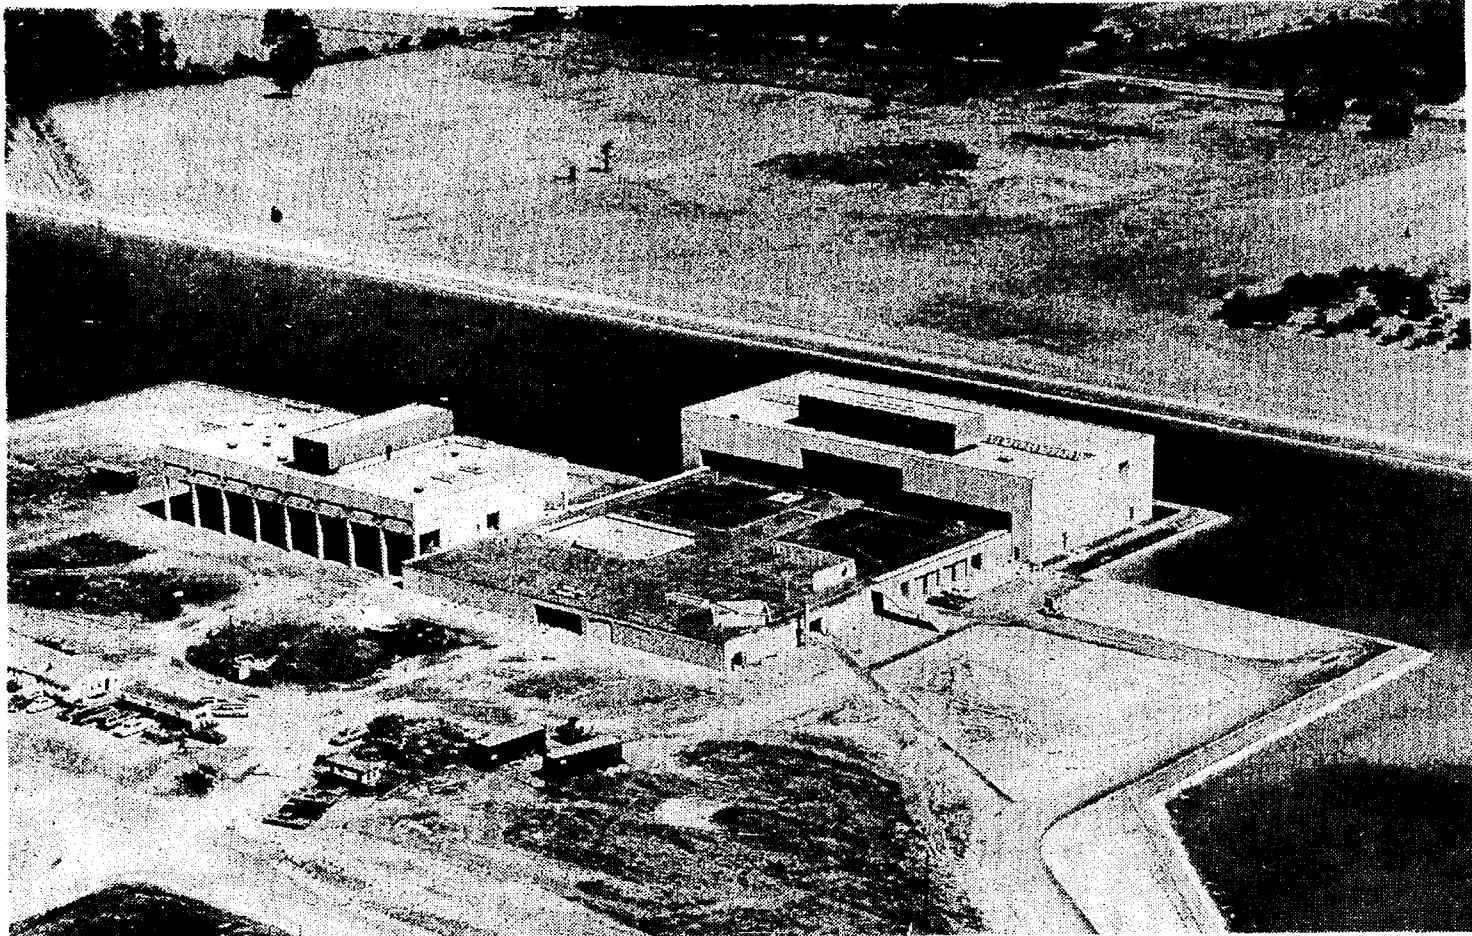

Cabin Mate Of Slain Man In Custody

FENVILLE — Sheriff's deputies and state police apprehended a suspect in the stabbing death of a migrant worker early today after a manhunt which included use of a tracking dog and search of a freight train in Benton Harbor.

Howard Cruthird, 65, was arrested at 6 a.m. on the Gordon Babbitt farm seven miles southwest of Fennville. He was lodged in the Allegan county jail for investigation of murder in the death of William Caton, 51, his cabin mate on the Babbitt farm.

Caton was dead on arrival at Douglas Community hospital last night. Dr. James Hays, Douglas, deputy medical examiner said he had a knife wound of the upper left chest. Dr. Hays ordered an autopsy.

Allegan county sheriff's officers said Cruthird went to a neighboring cabin at 9:45 p.m. Wednesday and told Lee Bufkin that something had happened to his cabin mate. Bufkin told deputies he found Caton slumped on a bench beside the cabin and that Caton's breath-

Allegan Welfare Unit Plans Work Program

ALLEGAN — The citizens advisory committee of the Allegan county social services board last night decided to prepare a work program for welfare recipients in the county.

The committee agreed to begin preparing the program at its next meeting on Aug. 1, with hopes of instituting the program by fall.

At the first meeting, committee members indicated their chief concern is with how many parents receiving Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) and Aid to Dependent Children Unemployed (ADCU) are able to work, but do not have employment.

Last night the committee heard four speakers. Mrs. Harold DePree, past chairman of the citizens advisory committee for the Kalamazoo county social services department; Pat Babcock, formerly with the state department of social services, who is now an aid to State Rep. James Farnsworth of Plainwell; Mrs. Amy Frier, a volunteer services specialist with the state department of social services; and Mrs. Beatrice Fisher, director of social services in Barry county.

Mrs. Fisher described the work program in Barry county and said the program was successful. She said the county had some non-working males who were capable of working. Arrangements were made with the Barry county road commission to provide supervised employment to encourage good work habits and to teach new skills. She said the program ended with 60 per cent success. She said the county would begin new program when enough welfare people were available.

Bloom'dale Sets Budget At $31,290

Total Up $5,290 Over Last Year

BLOOMINGDALE — The Bloomingdale village council last night adopted a budget for the 1969 fiscal year in the amount of $31,290, representing an increase of $5,290 over last year's budget of $26,000.

The increase in the budget will be used for public works, street repairs, pest control and sidewalks. The tax rate of 12 mills will remain the same, according to village clerk, Richard M. Dickerson. An increase in the village's state equalized valuation and increased funds from state resources will provide the increased revenue.

Some of the budget items include legislative salaries and election expenses, $2,000; street lights, $2,400; street repairs, $3,900; sidewalks, $1,000; public works, $6,500; and pest control, $1,000.

It was announced the council will meet with a representative of the Clyde E. Williams and Associates engineering firm of South Bend, to discuss the acquiring of land for a sewage treatment plant and the necessary steps to hold a bond election to finance the project.

The village has been ordered by the State Water Resources Commission to cease pollution of the Haven, Melvin and Dickerson creeks by building a sewage treatment plant.

The council instructed village attorney Charles Wickert to contact the bonding attorneys, Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, to proceed in settling up bonding procedures and preparation of a bonding election.

Council members learned the parking lot at Augusta Haven park has been prepared and graveled and is now ready for use. The council also authorized repairs on the arch at the entrance to the park.

The council authorized the purchase of a calibrated speedometer for police chief Robert Johnson's patrol car to be used to clock speeds of motorists. Bills totaling $1,443 were approved for payment.

Loss Of Funds Was Threatened

Officials Must Adhere Closely To Timetable

Federal approval of the sewer system project being developed by St. Joseph and Lincoln townships and the Village of Stevensville was announced today.

The extension of the grant by James O. McDonald, regional construction grants program director for the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration, puts the three agencies providing the funds for the $1.8 million project on record as approving the program.

APPROVED LOCALLY

Lincoln township board approved the project Tuesday and yesterday the St. Joseph township board approved by resolution the plan to build an interceptor sewer from Stevensville to St. Joseph. State Water Resources approval is linked with the federal grant. The federal and state governments will provide 55 per cent of the project cost.

McDonald wrote Thomas A. Sinn, director of the Berrien County Planning Commission, that the time table submitted by the Lake Michigan Water and Sewage Treatment Authority was acceptable to the Federal government.

The U.S. had threatened to take away the funds charging lack of progress. The timetable calls for starting construction by December 31.

The project will go to the county planning commission for review July 16 and to the board of supervisors July 21.

The county unit will have to submit construction figures so the amount allocated can be determined.

McDonald wrote: "We have determined that federal participation will be continued on this project contingent on strict adherence to the schedule outlined in your letter and submission of periodic status reports. The first such report should be submitted to reach us no later than August 4, 1969."

NEWS OF MARKETS

Wall Street Continues To Slide

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market sank lower in moderately active trading early today.

The Dow Jones industrial average at 10:30 a.m. was off 2.33 at 859.29.

Losses led gains by about 200 issues.

A 290,000-share block of Continental Telephone traded at 22 1/2, up 1/2.

Other early blocks included: Occidental Petroleum, 14,000 shares at 36, off 1/2; Pennzoil, 89,400 shares at 38 1/2, off 1/4; RCA, 7,600 shares at 40, off 1/4; and American Telephone & Telegraph, 9,000 shares at 54 1/2, up 1/4.

Opening prices included: Polaroid, off 3/4 at 115 on 10,200 shares; Benguet, off 1/4 at 9,300 shares; Boeing, up 1/4 at 39 1/4 on 8,400 shares; International Nickel, off 1/4 at 35 on 8,300 shares; and Xerox, off 1/2 at 83 1/2 on 8,300 shares.

The market slid to a new low for the year Wednesday as it turned in its third straight losing performance. The decline was attributed in part to continuing investor concern over the fate of the income tax surcharge extension. Brokers said the market's decline Tuesday had many investors more cautious and that they had taken to the sidelines.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 8.73 to 861.92, a new 1969 closing low and the lowest the Dow has closed since April 1, 1968. The Associated Press 60-stock average lost 1.8 to 306.8, also a new low for the year.

On the American Stock Exchange, fractional losses were shown by Asamera, British Petroleum, Cinera, and New York Mining. Allen Electric and Syntex made fractional gains.

'Standard Brands' -- Best Bet For Novices

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. After scripping for years I've decided to venture into something daring — like buying stocks. We have a home almost paid for, life insurance and $5,000 in E bonds. Take-home income is $145 a week. I know nothing about stocks, but have been scanning the stock lists at random, looking for low-priced stocks. Is this the way to start? I have $20 a week to invest. I walked into a local investment firm to see if they would explain a few things to me, but got cold feet when I saw all those men watching the board. I suppose I should forget the whole thing, but I know I'll never be satisfied until I'm burned.

A. Your approach is not at all unusual. Many people feel about investing the same way they feel, as a youngster, about sneaking a puff on a cigarette behind the barn. They expected to be punished for it.

I'd say you are in a position to begin acquiring common shares. Whether you should be speculating in low-priced issues is something else again. The layman who hopes to make money out of cheap stocks must know a good deal more about the market than the novice investor who puts his money into a few shares of an old line, blue chip company. I'm sure you will agree that in any field, only the expert should take a chance on going "bargain hunting." If you're not an expert you should buy the "standard brands."

today yield around 7 1/2 to 8 per cent.

MAKE SWITCH

Q. Several years ago we bought $5,000 U.S. Treasury 3 1/2% due November 1971. Does that mean we still get only 3 1/2% per cent on the bonds? Should we sell and buy a 7 per cent utility bond?

A. Bond interest is generally fixed for the life of the bond. So you still get only 3 1/2% a year interest on each of these $1,000 bonds. A recent quotation for the bond, however, was 9 1/2%, so on your $935 present value you are getting a current return of about 4.2 per cent. The yield to maturity (which includes the $65 each bond will increase in price to maturity in roughly 2 1/2 years) comes to 6.72 per cent.

If you buy a 7 1/2% bond for around par ($1,000) you will get $75 a year income. If you need maximum income NOW, you should make the switch.

Be ready for your newspaperboy

When your carrierboy comes to collect, please make sure you're ready. With the right change, if possible, he'll appreciate it with a broad smile and a "Thank you". You see, because he is in business for himself, your newspaperboy depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. Repeat calls mean extra work with no extra profit. So — give the boy a break. And thanks!

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

THE ECONOMICS OF CIGARETTES

To ban or not to ban cigarette ads from TV and radio...

To warn or not to warn the U.S. smoking public that cigarettes may cause death from lung cancer, heart disease, pulmonary emphysema...

To allow or not to allow federal regulatory agencies to clamp strict new rules on cigarette sales and advertisements...

These are fundamental questions with which the Senate Consumer Subcommittee (of the Senate Commerce Committee) will have to grapple when scheduled hearings open at the end of this month.

The questions are of crucial importance to the cigarette industry and it is waging an all-out and so far successful drive against federal regulation (with the exception of today's innocuous warnings on cigarette packages).

DEADLY RISK

They are surely of even more importance to the U.S. public. Cigarette smoking has been pronounced a deadly risk over and over again by the U.S. Surgeon General; it's estimated that as many as 300,000 Americans die prematurely each year because of smoking. The Federal Communications Commission has announced its intention to ban all cigarette advertisements on both radio and TV if Congress gives it the go ahead. The Federal Trade Commission is currently holding hearings on proposed regulations to require stern health warnings in all ads.

Against the overwhelming evidence of the dangers of cigarette smoking, why is it so difficult to obtain curbs on the industry's ads? The answer is that this story goes far beyond the sphere of health and deep into the sphere of big-time money, giant and powerful industries, whole regions, the tax take, etc. To give you just a few broad hints:

- American smokers (60 million strong) today spend over $9 billion a year on cigarettes and other tobacco products.
- The tobacco advertising business comes to about $300 million a year.
- Farm income from tobacco (mostly the South, of course) is not estimated at about $1.3 billion a year.
- About 30,000 U.S. workers have jobs in tobacco manufacturing alone.
- The total state-local tax take from tobacco sales amounts to a huge $3.7 billion annually.
- And in addition, smokers spend countless millions of dollars to buy aspirins, to pay tailor or repair bills, to buy lozenges and cough preparations, etc.
